C. Standards Advisory Group

- On December 2, SASB hosted a SAG Workshop for members to receive general updates on SASB activities and to have in-depth conversation about standards content and navigating implementation. Topics around implementation included discussion on the following: reporting using multiple industry standards, TCFD implementation, building internal buy-in, and an investor corporate dialogue on ESG integration. Standards Content-focused conversations touched on a series of industry-specific or cross cutting themes such as climate risk in loan portfolios, cybersecurity metrics, single-use plastics, access and affordability in biotech and pharma, and product portfolio development within the food and beverage industries. Feedback from breakout discussions have helped informed staff research activities. In addition to the discussion topics, the meeting provided members with an opportunity to connect with peers, SASB staff, and the Standards Board.
- From late January through early February, the Research Team held office hours and a series of briefings with corporates and investors on research opportunities in the Consumer Goods sector. The conversation helped guide our early thinking around sustainability issues impacting industries within the sector and could lead towards standard-setting activities.
- Research Team staff have reached out to SAG members and their colleagues with a request to identify experts who can provide in-depth feedback on specific questions supporting the following research and standards-setting projects: Plastics Risks and Opportunities in Pulp & Paper Products and Chemicals Industries, Systemic Risk in Asset Management, and Tailing Management in Extractives.
- SASB is interviewing SAG members to better understand their specific processes and challenges related to considering adoption of one or more reporting frameworks as part of a project to consider creating a visual mapping of the alignment between SASB and other sustainability frameworks such as IIRC, SDGs, and GRI. We're hearing market demand for a clearer picture of how these frameworks overlap and how to approach reporting using multiple standards, so our team is exploring ways we can support that understanding.
- Members of the Research Team have had a series of 1-on-1 conversation SAG members regarding a series of topics related to current and potential research projects.
